An Ocean Mystery: The Missing Catch follows renowned fisheries scientist Dr. Daniel Pauly and his team of international experts as they piece together evidence to discover the true quantity of fish we have caught, and just how close we are to running out of this precious resource.

Along the way we find hope; Dr. Pauly's landmark research on fisheries management, and new technology developed by Dr. Stephen Box, Vice President of Global Fishery Solutions at Rare and former scientist at the Smithsonian, reveal an opportunity to preserve the bounty of the seas for future generations. Written and directed by Alison Barrat, co-produced by the Smithsonian Channel and the Khaled bin Sultan Living Oceans Foundation.
